WHAT IS STRUCTURAL POLYMER?

It's a process that injects a hi-impact polystyrene resin into a huge press. The injected material expands under pressure to form what is commonly referred to as structural foam. It is a material which has replaced many raw materials used in the production of automobile parts, furniture and much more.

Structural foam is a concept which has growing interest in the material market place. Structural foam is not to be confused with Styrofoam or other foams of a soft flexible nature. In simple terms, it is a very hard, solid core material, and as with all structural foam types, flexural strength and tensile strength are dependent upon the specific requirements of the product desired.
